Pluto One paper

General Overview

Pluto Protocol is a distributed data exchange block chain with special purpose.

Pluto Coin automatically donates 10 % of its fees to the foundation when it's transmitted.

General users may vote on the use of funds collected depending on their acquired portion of Pluto coins.

The problems humanity have faced

Starvation - About 870 million people around the world are malnourished.

Refugees - As of 2015, the number of forced immigrant refugees continues to rise, reaching 65.3 million by the end of 2015.

AIDS Orphan - Usually, the orphan has no parents to be taken care of Using child labor - 73 million, work with dangerous child labor.

What can Pluto do alongside them?

Reveal data - The transparent disclosure and sharing of information that some agencies own, and the transparency and accountability of their operations, can be increased.

Protecting sensitive personal information - Pluto can encrypt this sensitive personal information to process.

Sharing work experience - Pluto protocol allows each of these international organizations to share their work experiences, making them more efficient.

Pluto Alliance

Union is the biggest contributor to the sharing of work experience. For instance, UNICEF and the World Food Organization can work on projects together, or they can carry out certain ticketing projects using one manual. All of this is possible within the Pluto Alliance
